

The Northern Enterprise was a newspaper published before the Campbellton Graphic. In a Summer Holiday Number of June 22, 1898 [price 10 cents] there are a few write-ups re the Mowats. The paper is filled with pictures of early Campbellton and the surrounding area.

Under the heading FISHING ON RESTIGOUCHE is the following:

Probably no river in the world has a greater reputation for its fly fishing than the Restigouche. Every year brings to our midst large numbers of enthusiastic fishermen, principally from the neighbouring republic, who whip the salmon pools untiringly from May to August. There are several clubs on the river, the best known of which is probably the Restigouche Salmon Club whose clubhouse is situated at the confluence of the Restigouche and Matapedia Rivers. This clubhouse is composed of wealthy New York gentlemen. They own the principal part of the celebrated Matapedia River, with exception of four miles owned by J.P. and Alex. Mowat, whose waters were fished the last two seasons by George Donald and party, who have already formed a club and want to purchase the entire Matapedia River. The Kedgwick Club, organized in 1897, composed of ten wealthy American and Halifax gentlemen have twenty-five miles of water on the Kedgwick. W.A. McLeod of Boston is president. H.H. Brooks of Rhode Island and Dr. Jarvis of Hartford formed a small club and fish Mr. Alex.

The Northern Enterprise was a newspaper published before the Campbellton Graphic. In a Summer Holiday Number of June 22, 1898 (price 10 cents!!) there are a few write-ups re the Mowats. The paper is filled with pictures of early Campbellton and the surrounding area.

Under the heading FISHING ON RESTIGOUCHE is the following:
Probably no river in the world has a greater reputation for its fly fishing than the Restigouche. Every year brings to our midst large numbers of enthusiastic fishermen, principally from the neighbouring republic, who whip the salmon pools untiringly from May to August. There are several clubs on the river, the best known of which is probably the Restigouche Salmon Club whose clubhouse is situated at the confluence of the Restigouche and Matapedia Rivers. This clubhouse is composed of wealthy New York gentlemen. They own the principal part of the celebrated Matapedia River, with exception of four miles owned by J. P. and Alex. Mowat, whose waters were fished the last two seasons by George Donald and party, who have already formed a club and want to purchase the entire Matapedia River. The Kedgwick Club, organized in 1897, composed of ten wealthy American and Halifax gentlemen, have twenty-five miles of water on the Kedgwick. W. A. McLeod of Boston is president. H. M. Brooks of Rhode Island and Dr. Jarvis of Hartford form a small club and fish Mr. Alex.